Tom,

My colleague Adam Cefai will be sending you a message containing a link to the materials in the Shape file, as well as individual attachments. This should address the issue for you. If not, please let Adam and me know.

Subject: Wolverine - GIS Shape file transmittal issue

Scott, following up on the matter of the GIS Shape files we discussed last Friday, I understand it is quite likely that our system did strip the files off your transmittal, and so we have two suggestions:

1) Rename the .zip file as .zzz or .txt, and then send it to my address again. Once EPA receives it, we can try renaming it back to .zip and uncompress it as usual.

or:

2) Send all of the numerous files associated with the shapefile as individual attachments (rather than sending them as a compressed .zip file). This will work as well, although understandably if it's a lot of data, you may want to send the data compressed to keep file sizes of attachments to a minimum.

Are these options you can work with on your end? I expect to be available today.

Thanks,

Tom M. Williams
